FOUR BRIDGE WORKERS KILLED — Rescuers ride a crane to rescue a workman after the staging collapsed on a bridge under construction at Kittery, Maine, dumping 11 men 95 feet to the ground. Four were killed and seven injured.

Report Drugs May Affect Unborn Babies

CHICAGO (AP) — A Philadelphia doctor has cautioned physicians that many drugs given to pregnant women may affect their unborn babies—often adversely.

The drug may remain in the circulatory system of the fetus—the developing child—longer than in the mother and produce harmful side effects, Dr. Mary Louis Soentgen told a session of the American Medical Association convention, which ended Thursday.

Dr. Soentgen is associate professor of pediatrics and obstetrics-gynecology at Thomas Jefferson University.

It was once considered that the placenta, which connects the fetus with the mother, served as a protective barrier and prevented maternal medication from reaching the fetus.

Dr. Soentgen said it is now realized that not only does the original drug pass through the placental barrier but so do compounds resulting from the breakdown of the drug in the maternal kidney or liver.

"Unexpected effects have produced tragic results on the developing fetus," Dr. Soentgen said.

Drugs taken by the mother early in pregnancy may produce death or malformations, she said. Later in pregnancy, she said, maternal medication may cause either growth retardation or illness in the unborn child.

She pointed out that the unborn child of a mother who is addicted to unprescribed drugs such as heroin may also become addicted and die if not carried through post birth withdrawal—a gradual tapering off of the drug.

But she advised physicians to wait until after the child is born before withdrawing the mother from drugs. Otherwise, the infant goes through withdrawal in the uterus and may die there.

Dr. Soentgen said various maternal medications may cause a miscarriage, produce masculine traits in a female fetus, cause cleft palate, interfere with bone development, bring about deafness, or produce fetal bleeding and death.

President Seeks National Unity; On Western Trip

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, returning to the theme of his inaugural address, says it's time to "bring Americans together" instead of "having America torn apart."

This was his appeal to a wildly enthusiastic crowd in St. Louis Thursday as he stopped off en route to his seaside villa here.

Normally a reserved, even remote man Nixon kept expressing himself during the westward journey in an off-the-cuff style that produced something new at each stop. Some examples:

—While appealing in St. Louis for national unity, racial harmony and a closing of the generation gap, he declared that although some "believe the nation is coming apart at the seams," more should be heard about "what is right about America."

—To a handful of newsmen at Scott Air Force Base at Belleville, Ill., he went out of his way to reveal that he plans no 1970 campaign speeches, at least for the foreseeable future, and believes he can do best for Republican candidates by making a good record in Washington.

—Handshaking well-wishers at a Marine air base near here, he disclosed he will make a "final report" Tuesday on the entry of U.S. ground forces in Cambodia. The exact format of the report has not been determined.

—At the same stop, Nixon announced he will appear live on the three major television networks for an hour Wednesday, at 10 p.m. EDT, to answer foreign affairs questions posed by network newsmen John Chancellor of NBC, Eric Sevareid of CBS and Howard K. Smith of ABC.

Nixon even added a social note: He and wife Pat will go to nearby Newport Beach Saturday for the wedding of a niece.

The President was playing host today to some 50 editors, publishers and broadcast industry executives. He arranged for them to be briefed before and after a presidential lunch by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and other White House foreign policy advisers.

Mansfield Honored By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the object of their affections out of sight but not out of mind, the Senate has paid a worthy tribute to Mike Mansfield, known for limiting his remarks to "Yes," "Nope," and "Maybe."

The occasion Thursday was to honor the Montana Democrat for serving as majority leader of the Senate longer than anyone before him—nine years and 173 days.

That put him nine days up on his nearest rival, Kentucky Democrat Alben Barkley, who held the longevity record until he became vice president in 1949 under Harry S. Truman.

Taking time out from debate on the U.S. involvement in Cambodia, senators of both parties took the floor for more than two hours in their praise for Mansfield, whose own speeches are notable for being terse and to the point.

Assistant Democratic leader Edward M. Kennedy noted that fact, saying some politicians answer reporters' questions with long-winded phrases such as "I want to make one thing perfectly clear," or "Let me say this about that."

Kennedy said Mansfield has five standard responses: "Yes," "Nope," "Maybe," "Could be" and "Don't know."

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Weather Bureau has issued a tornado watch for a portion of extreme east Indiana, a large portion of Ohio, south western Pennsylvania, and a very small portion of northern Kentucky.

The bureau said the threat of tornadoes would exist in those areas until 5:30 p.m. Friday.

A few severe thunderstorms with large hail and locally damaging winds were also forecast.

The greatest threat of tornadoes and severe thunderstorms is in an area along and 70 miles either side of a line from 60 miles west of Dayton, to 70 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

The tornado watch includes all counties south of a Van Wert, Mansfield, East Liverpool line.

Storms Hit Southwest, Great Lakes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms cracked from the Southwest to the Great Lakes region today following a rash of nighttime tornadoes in the Northern Plains.

Twisters dipped into or spun over 10 Minnesota communities from Albert Lea in the south to the Bemidji area in the north. One trailer home was heavily damaged, but there were no reports of injuries. The winds also uprooted trees, downed power lines and broke windows.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour, and laced with marble-sized hail, pounded the Austin, Minn., area during a heavy thunderstorm late Thursday.

Similarly powerful winds buffeted portions of New Mexico. Gusts of 75 miles an hour were recorded at Roswell.

The storminess over the Southwest came after still another day of record late-June heat from Arizona and New Mexico into the intermountain and plateau regions.

The mercury soared to 111 at Tucson, Ariz., and to 103 at Pueblo, Colo., both record highs for June 25 in those cities. Blistering temperatures continued over some interior sections of southern California, where a Blythe registered 122 Thursday and remained at 102 at midnight.

Heavy Mideast Fight Flares Between Israel And Syria

Reds Launch Cambodian Attacks

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops launched a new attack on Kompong Speu early today. They also imperiled an important supply depot at Long Vek, 20 miles north of Phnom Penh, and for the first time threatened Oudong, site of ancient Buddhist monasteries and tombs 20 miles northwest of the capital.

The attacks marked a continuation of the pressure which Cambodian military officials say has Phnom Penh as the ultimate objective.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command in Saigon announced that a U.S. Navy escort plane attacked gun positions deep inside North Vietnam Thursday after the guns fired on a reconnaissance aircraft the Navy plane was escorting.

The attack 15 miles northwest of the coastal city of Vinh and about 155 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone was the first such reported since May 25.

"There was no damage to U.S. aircraft," the command said. It gave no assessment of damage to the North Vietnamese positions.

Since the U.S. bombing halt over North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968, U.S. planes have continued to fly reconnaissance missions over the North with armed escorts. The Pentagon said in May American planes had been fired upon and had returned fire more than 60 times, and nine planes have been reported shot down.

The Cambodian military spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces attacked barracks and a provincial military headquarters at 2 a.m. today at Kompong Speu, a provincial capital 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. Government and South Vietnamese forces recaptured the city in a major battle 10 days ago.

Kompong Speu is on the only highway open between Phnom Penh and Kompong Som, Cambodia's chief port and the site of its only oil refinery. The spokesman said the road was still open to small cars but not to the big fuel trucks that bring oil and gas to the capital.

The spokesman said the fighting at Long Vek was threatening a large warehouse complex which American foreign aid provided before the United States and Cambodia broke diplomatic relations in 1963. That battle also closed the highway to Battambang in northwestern Cambodia, the country's second largest city.

There were no details on the clash at Oudong, one of Cambodia's most beautiful cities. More fighting also was reported around Siem Reap, near the ancient ruins of Angkor. Other Cambodian troops were said to be moving toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where the situation was reported quiet following several days of intermittent fighting.

Nasser Rejects U.S. Proposals; Tel Aviv Cool

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Syria slugged each other on the ground and in the air today for the third straight day. Tel Aviv claimed that an Israeli armored force seized Syrian military positions on the central sector of the 50-mile frontier.

Syria claimed that it downed six Israeli jets in the swirling conflict. The Israelis claimed two Syrian MIG21s. Tel Aviv admitted the loss of one jet and said the pilot parachuted into Syrian territory.

It marked the first time since the 1967 Middle East war that Israeli armor has been reported moving onto Syrian soil. The positions attacked faced Rafid on the Golan Heights.

A communique issued by the military command in Tel Aviv said that the Israeli force "supported by artillery and aircraft attacked and seized control of enemy positions at noon today."

Israeli jets attacked Syrian army camps near Damascus for the second day in succession, and large-scale dogfights raged through the Syrian skies. Then Syria announced that Israeli tanks had crossed the cease-fire line on the Golan Heights.

"Violent fighting along the frontier is still continuing," said Damascus Radio shortly after noon. "The enemy is throwing his armored units against our positions, and our forces are engaging them."

Syrian anti-aircraft fire tore a three-foot hole in the wing of an Italian DC8 jetliner as it flew 31,000 feet over Damascus, but the plane made a safe landing in Beirut and none of the 104 persons aboard was hurt. The Syrian hit, believed to be a missile, punctured a fuel tank containing more than 100 tons of aviation kerosene and knocked out the two port engines. Members of the crew said it was a "miracle" they were able to reach the Lebanese capital.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser meanwhile rejected the new U.S. plan for Middle East peace, charging it would leave Israel in possession of the Golan Heights territory which it seized from Syria in the 1967 war.

The Israeli government called home its ambassador from Washington to discuss the American proposal, but the semiofficial Jerusalem newspaper Davar called it "a bad plan which can lead not to a permanent settlement but to an immediate conflagration."

Syria said 40 of its MIGs rose to battle the Israeli air force, the largest number of interceptors the Syrians have admitted sending up in a single engagement since the 1967 war.

Agnew Charts Campaign Talks

Nixon To Stay Out Of Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has no plans for campaign speeches this fall.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has lots of them.

His office says the vice president's calendar for September and October when the congressional and senatorial contests are in full swing, is rapidly filling with speaking dates.

Anyone who has followed the popularity polls can see why Agnew's help is much sought after in this election year with 435 seats in the House and 35 in the Senate at stake.

Nixon told newsmen in Belleville, Ill., Thursday he feels he can best serve Republican candidates by making "as good a record as possible in Washington."

Any presidential involvement in the campaign, he said, will depend on international developments. "I have no plans for any speeches in October," he said.

Agnew's office says "an intensive campaign schedule is being arranged for most of those two months."

It is working in close cooperation with the Republican National Committee, and the campaign committees in the House and Senate.

The vice president proved to be a bigger drawing card than anyone thought in the spring and early summer when he crisscrossed the country, speaking at fund-raising affairs and throwing his most controversial jobs.

His role in political leadership was worked out by Nixon and Agnew in the early days of the administration and even before they came into office. The matter came up in their discussions of the role of the vice president in many areas.

What Agnew will do for his President is much the same as Nixon did for President Eisenhower. As vice president, Nixon took over most of the campaigning and there was talk then that Eisenhower was taking the high road and Nixon the low.

Say DDT Was Major Cause Of Death Of 'Cannery Row'

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A research biologist suggests that DDT was a major cause of death for California's sardine industry based at Monterey, setting for the John Steinbeck novel "Cannery Row."

The industry went into sharp decline after 1945, biologist Walter Thomsen of Folsom, Calif., said in a report Thursday to the Pacific Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Thomsen said 1944 was the first year DDT pesticide was applied on a grand scale to crops in California's Central Valley.

In 1945 the 16 plants on Monterey's Cannery Row packed 469.3 million pounds of sardines and employed 4,000 workers. The next year the pack dropped to 284 million pounds and in 1947 to 54 million pounds.

By 1966 the California catch had dropped to about 5,000 tons. Because of a moratorium on sardine fishing since 1967 Cannery Row now packs no sardines at all. Only one of the 16 plants survives, packing squid and fish meal produced from anchovies.

Thomsen, a California Department of Fish and Game biologist, said overfishing was a factor in the disappearance of the Pacific sardine schools, but he believes increasing use of DDT provided the coup de grace.

He cited laboratory experiments showing that DDT causes death of embryo fish.

Licavoli Object Of New Story

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, whose long years in prison and his efforts to gain freedom have made him one of the most widely known of Ohio Penitentiary convicts, was featured in the June 23 issue of the prison's newspaper, "The Harbinger."

The 66-year-old Licavoli, who has been in prison since the early 1930s for his part in Toledo gang killings, told an interviewer:

"I like people. I got no bitterness, no spite or ill feelings against any human being. I just want to like everybody else."

Arms Talk Meet Mostly Routine

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The 20th session of American and Soviet negotiators at the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) at the U.S. Embassy here today was officially described as "business as usual" without presentation of a formal proposal by the Americans.

The session was attended again by the top American negotiator, Gerard Smith, who flew to Washington earlier in the week and was received by President Nixon.

Smith was unofficially reported to have returned to Vienna with a specific U.S. proposal for cutting back the United States' Soviet rocket race.

An official conference source said, however, that Smith came back with no new instructions and that there had been only a "casual reference" to his trip to Washington in the informal part of today's session.

San Antonio Jet Crash Fatal To 4

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A Navy jet trainer plane crashed into a residential area Thursday night and careened into two houses, destroying both. Authorities said four persons were killed and about a dozen injured.

Reports of a fifth death were erroneous, police said.

Authorities said the plane, a T-28J Cougar, was making a practice landing at Kelly Air Force Base when it fell into Southwest 41st Street on San Antonio's West Side and skidded into the two houses on the north side of Luz Avenue. The houses caught fire.

The bodies of an instructor and a student pilot aboard the jet were found in the street, officers said, and there were two bodies in a house.

OU Student Gets Year In Jail

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Gary D. Kastnett, 18, of Chevy Chase, Md., an Ohio University student, was fined $500 and given a one year jail sentence in Municipal Court Wednesday on a charge of defiling the American flag.

Judge Franklin Sheeter suspended nine months of the jail term.

The charge had been filed against Kastnett last Feb. 14 by police who said they saw him wearing a small flag sewn on the rear pocket of his trousers.

Membership Drop Noted By Methodists

LAKESIDE, Ohio (AP) — Membership in the East Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church dropped by 6,901 during the last year but members' contributions for church work increased a total of $487,843.

A financial report at the annual conference meeting today said member contributions totaled nearly $24 million, an average of $77.35 per member. Individual contributions were up an average of $3.24 over the previous 12-month period, it was reported.

Senate Approves Costly Education Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved a $4.75 billion education money bill that is nearly $800 million more than President Nixon requested but includes the initial funds wanted by the White House for aiding desegregating schools.

The bill was passed 74 to 4 early today, capping a long session that didn't end until after midnight in the second half of a two-session day designed to clear a work load backed up by the debate over Cambodia.

The final approval came after the Senate passed 70 to 18 an amendment to provide $150 million as the first installment of the $1.5 billion Nixon wants to help Southern school districts in their desegregation efforts.

Inclusion of the $150 million made the possibility of a Nixon veto uncertain. He rejected a similar bill earlier this year because the appropriation was more than he asked, and some Republicans had warned against a veto this time if the total went far above Nixon's request.

But because a share of the overage is due to the $150 million and because Nixon has expressed strong desire for the aid money, it is hoped he will sign the measure.

The House last April passed its version of the spending bill, which totaled $4.13 billion. The two versions now go to conference where it appears the Senate total likely will be trimmed.

Earlier Thursday two recently districts had told the House they need the emergency federal money to help improve conditions whites ignored when only black children were involved.

The Dade County School Board in Miami, Fla., increased its budget for police and guards from $350,000 to a projected $1.2 million in one year after whites learned of lunch-money shake-downs in once all-black schools.

And in Houston, Texas, whites are demanding that dilapidated schools once attended only by blacks be fixed up now that white children will be attending them.

Dade's chairman, Holmes Braddock, told the House Education Committee Thursday of the Miami situation.

"These extortions and shake-downs are problems that always existed, especially black child against black, but unfortunately the whites never cared, until now they are aware of them for the first time," he said.

George Oser, secretary of the trustees of the Houston school board, said parents by the thousands objected when the newly elected board revealed a minority-majority transfer plan which in most cases will send children to their nearest school.

"Parents had been driving by schools for years, schools that were dilapidated but hidden perhaps by shrubs or a viaduct but were totally segregated. Now, for the first time, people are realizing the nearest school is not the one they want their child to attend," he said.

"At one heated civic club meeting where I spoke, a parent got up and said, 'We drove over and looked at Williams School. There are open ditches around the school and it is in disrepair.

The Cambodian military spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces attacked barracks and a provincial military headquarters at 2 a.m. today at Kompong Speu, a provincial capital 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. Government and South Vietnamese forces recaptured the city in a major battle 10 days ago.

Kompong Speu is on the only highway open between Phnom Penh and Kompong Som, Cambodia's chief port and the site of its only oil refinery. The spokesman said the road was still open to small cars but not to the big fuel trucks that bring oil and gas to the capital.

The spokesman said the fighting at Long Vek was threatening a large warehouse complex which American foreign aid provided for the United States and Cambodia broke diplomatic relations in 1963. That battle also closed the highway to Battambang in northwestern Cambodia, the country's second largest city.

There were no details on the clash at Oudong, one of Cambodia's most beautiful cities. More fighting also was reported around Siem Reap, near the ancient ruins of Angkor. Other Cambodian troops were said to be moving toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where the situation was reported quiet following several days of intermittent fighting.

Nasser Rejects U.S. Proposals; Tel Aviv Cool

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Syria slugged each other on the ground and in the air today for the third straight day. Tel Aviv claimed that an Israeli armored force seized Syrian military positions on the central sector of the 50-mile frontier.

Syria claimed that it downed six Israeli jets in the swirling conflict. The Israelis claimed two Syrian MIG21s. Tel Aviv admitted the loss of one jet and said the pilot parachuted into Syrian territory.

It marked the first time since the 1967 Middle East war that Israeli armor has been reported moving onto Syrian soil. The positions attacked faced Rafid on the Golan Heights.

A communique issued by the military command in Tel Aviv said that the Israeli force "supported by artillery and aircraft attacked and seized control of enemy positions at noon today."

Israeli jets attacked Syrian army camps near Damascus for the second day in succession, and large-scale dogfights raged through the Syrian skies. Then Syria announced that Israeli tanks had crossed the cease-fire line on the Golan Heights.

"Violent fighting along the frontline is still continuing," said Damascus Radio shortly after noon. "The enemy is throwing his armored units against our positions, and our forces are engaging them."

Syrian anti-aircraft fire tore a three-foot hole in the wing of an Italian DC8 jetliner as it flew 31,000 feet over Damascus, but the plane made a safe landing in Beirut and none of the 104 persons aboard was hurt. The Syrian hit, believed to be a missile, punctured a fuel tank containing more than 100 tons of aviation kerosene and knocked out the two port engines. Members of the crew said it was a "miracle" they were able to reach the Lebanese capital.

Agnew Charts Campaign Talks

Nixon To Stay Out Of Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has no plans for campaign speeches this fall.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has lots of them.

His office says the vice president's calendar for September and October when the congressional and senatorial contests are in full swing, is rapidly filling with speaking dates.

Anyone who has followed the popularity polls can see why Agnew's help is much sought after in this election year with 435 seats in the House and 35 in the Senate at stake.

Nixon told newsmen in Belleville, Ill., Thursday he feels he can best serve Republican candidates by making "as good a record as possible in Washington."

Any presidential involvement in the campaign, he said, will depend on international developments. "I have no plans for any speeches in October," he said.

Agnew's office says "an intensive campaign schedule is being arranged for most of those two months."

It is working in close cooperation with the Republican National Committee, and the campaign committees in the House and Senate.

The vice president proved to be a bigger drawing card than anyone thought in the spring and early summer when he crisscrossed the country, speaking at fund-raising affairs and throwing his most controversial jabs.

His role in political leadership was worked out by Nixon and Agnew in the early days of the administration and even before they came into office. The matter came up in their discussions of the role of the vice president in many areas.

What Agnew will do for his President is much the same as Nixon did for President Eisenhower. As vice president, Nixon took over most of the campaigning and there was talk then that Eisenhower was taking the high road and Nixon the low.

Four Springfield Men Booked In Narcotics Case

Four Springfield men were arrested on narcotics charges Thursday evening by Circleville Police and appeared in Municipal court Friday morning.

Stephen Warfield, 20, had bond set at $15,000 on three charges including unlawfully and knowingly keeping and dispensing narcotic drugs from his car, possession and control of narcotic drugs, and possession of narcotic drugs for sale.

Maximum sentence on the dispensing charge is a $10,000 fine plus 2-15 years in jail. A sentence of 2-15 years and $10,000 fine is the maximum on the possession charge and a 10-25 year jail sentence is the maximum on the possession for sale charge.

The other three men, Keith Warfield, 18, Theodore E. Elliot, 24, and Charles E. Beverly, 19, were charged with conspiring with Stephen Warfield and possession of narcotic drugs.

Police officers Smallwood and Larry Jirles stopped the auto on the Route 23 North ramp. When the driver of the car could not produce a registration they were brought to Circleville Police headquarters where the local law enforcers gained permission to search the vehicle.

With the help of Sgt. Wes Barton, the officers found six packs of an uncut "marijuana like substance" and six full bottles of the cough syrup.

The 21.13 grams of the substance (about 3.5 of an ounce) estimated at a value of between $200 and $250 on the open market, was taken to the Circleville Ohio State Highway Patrol post where it is being tested.

The men are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court at 10:30 a.m. July 1.

Say DDT Was Major Cause Of Death Of 'Cannery Row'

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A research biologist suggests that DDT was a major cause of death for California's sardine industry based at Monterey, setting for the John Steinbeck novel "Cannery Row."

The industry went into sharp decline after 1945, biologist Walter Thomsen of Folsom, Calif., said in a report Thursday to the Pacific Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Thomsen said 1944 was the first year DDT pesticide was applied on a grand scale to crops in California's Central Valley. The valley drains through San Francisco Bay into the Pacific Ocean, a sardine fishery that in 1936 yielded 1.4 billion pounds of sardines for canning.

In 1945 the 16 plants on Monterey's Cannery Row packed 469.3 million pounds of sardines and employed 4,000 workers. The next year the pack dropped to 284 million pounds and in 1947 to 54 million pounds.

By 1966 the California catch had dropped to about 5,600 tons. Because of a moratorium on sardine fishing since 1967 Cannery Row now packs no sardines at all. Only one of the 16 plants survives, packing squid and fish meal produced from anchovies.

Arms Talk Meet Mostly Routine

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The 20th session of American and Soviet negotiators at the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) at the U.S. Embassy here today was officially described as "business as usual" without presentation of a formal proposal by the Americans.

The session was attended again by the top American negotiator, Gerard Smith, who flew to Washington earlier in the week and was received by President Nixon.

Smith was unofficially reported to have returned to Vienna with a specific U.S. proposal for cutting back the United States-Soviet rocket race.

An official conference source said, however, that Smith came back with no new instructions and that there had been only a "casual reference" to his trip to Washington in the informal part of today's session.

San Antonio Jet Crash Fatal To 4

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A Navy jet trainer plane crashed into a residential area Thursday night and careened into two houses, destroying both. Authorities said four persons were killed and about a dozen injured.

Reports of a fifth death were erroneous, police said.

Authorities said the plane, a TF9J Cougar, was making a practice landing at Kelly Air Force Base when it fell into Southwest 41st Street on San Antonio's West Side and skidded into the two houses on the north side of Luz Avenue. The houses caught fire.

The bodies of an instructor and a student pilot aboard the jet were found in the street, officers said, and there were two bodies in a house.

OU Student Gets Year In Jail

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Gary D. Kastnett, 18, of Chevy Chase, Md., an Ohio University student, was fined $500 and given a one year jail sentence in Municipal Court Wednesday on a charge of defiling the American flag.

Judge Franklin Sheeter suspended nine months of the jail term.

The charge had been filed against Kastnett last Feb. 14 by police who said they saw him wearing a small flag sewn on the rear pocket of his trousers.

Membership Drop Noted By Methodists

LAKESIDE, Ohio (AP) — Membership in the East Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church dropped by 6,901 during the last year but members' contributions for church work increased a total of $487,843.

A financial report at the annual conference meeting today said member contributions totaled nearly $24 million, an average of $77.35 per member. Individual contributions were up an average of $3.24 over the previous 12-month period, it was reported.

Dear Abby:

Anybody Can Err — Even Clergyman

DEAR ABBY: This is the third time I've written to you about my problem. I tore the other letters up, but I am determined to mail this one.

A while ago, I overheard my clergyman talking to a young woman who is a member of his congregation. (She is married and has children, too.) He told her it was all over between them, and that if his wife hadn't been in the hospital it never would have happened. He said they should go on as though nothing had happened.

I was so shocked, I could hardly believe my ears. This minister has done so much for the community and is so loved and respected by all who know him. He also has a lovely wife and family.

I told my husband about it, and he said we all make mistakes and I should keep quiet because if this ever got out it would hurt the church.

Now I can't even look at that worthless man without thinking what a hypocrite he is to preach about "honor and fidelity." I would like to be able to forgive and forget, but I just can't do it. I have lost all faith in him. Can you advise me?

DEAR ABBY: This isn't really a "problem," it's a question: When you have overnight guests, and they don't specify they want to be up at a certain time and no arrangements have been made by either party prior to bed time, is it proper etiquette for the guests to get up before the hosts? This happened recently, and we thought it rather unusual since we more or less took it for granted that they wanted to sleep in since there were no plans for them to leave early. By the time I had gotten up they were already sitting at the kitchen table.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to DOUBLE IN SPADES who had problems with a man who tried to play "footsies" with her under the bridge table: I find that whenever a pass is made under the table or over the table, the best way of handling it is to openly make a remark about it as though it were an accident, such as, "Oh, excuse me, did I kick your foot—or bump your knee?" Then move your leg. This will let everyone at the table know that you are not a footsie player.

This also works with men who try to get overly affectionate. I say so everyone can hear, "Hey, are you making a play for me? You MUST be kidding." Sure cools them off fast.

DEAR ABBY: This is just a question: When you have overnight guests, and they don't specify they want to be up at a certain time and no arrangements have been made by either party prior to bed time, is it proper etiquette for the guests to get up before the hosts? And one flaw doesn't make a man worthless. You CAN forgive if you sincerely want to, which you seem unwilling to do. And THAT'S your problem!

WONDERING: DEAR WONDERING: Genuine hospitality is making guests feel as comfortable as possible. (I hope you didn't let your "wonderment" show.) But when no mention is made of what time breakfast will be served, the guests get up when ever they feel like it. Yours did. You shouldn't have expected them to stay undercover until you were up and about.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to DOUBLE IN SPADES who had problems with a man who tried to play "footsies" with her under the bridge table:

Predict School Chief Will Get U.S. Post

AKRON Ohio (AP) — Sources in the Ohio Education Association predict that Martin Essex, Ohio superintendent of public instruction, will be named U.S. commissioner of education later this summer, the Akron Beacon Journal said Thursday.

Essex, a former Akron city schools superintendent who took his state job in 1966, has been proposed for the federal post by U.S. Rep. William H. Ayres R-Ohio, and Rep. Albert Quie R-Minn.

ACLU And Drugs

The American Civil Liberties Union's flirtation with a laissez-faire policy toward the use of drugs has now led it, inevitably, to the ultimate inanities—a pontification by its biennial conference that an individual has the right to use his own body as he wishes and that this right includes the use and possession of narcotics.

The ACLU concede that "conduct resulting from the uses or possession of drugs may involve civil or criminal penalties," but sees nothing criminal in the mere possession or use of drugs.

The argument that one can do with his body as he pleases is a dubious one at best and certainly bears no relevance to the drug scene.

When addicts prowl the streets in search of a dishonest dollar to support their habit, when governmental and private agencies engage in agonizing searches for means of helping "hooked" youngsters, then the public not only has the right but the duty to legislate against those uses of the body personal that represent sores on the body politic.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a pleasant late afternoon in the year 2070, and little Pamela decided to do her homework.

"Will you help me, grandpa?" she asked. The old man lowered a copy of the best-selling book he was reading—"Sex Before 100 Is for Children"—and asked:

"What is your problem?" "I have to write an essay on the history of the week," said Pamela. "We only have a two-day week now, but I hear there once were seven days in the week. Is that true?"

"Oh, my, yes," said grandpa. "I can remember the seven-day week quite well. My father told me that in his youth it was awful. People went to work six days, and then rested on a day they called the Sabbath. They must have really worked up a sweat in those days."

"What's sweat?" asked Pamela.

"That's a good question—I guess your generation doesn't know the meaning of the word," replied grandpa. "Sweat is little drops of salty water that pop out all over your body if you work too hard."

"Oh, how revolting," said little Pamela, making a face.

"Was there any cure for it?"

"Yes," continued grandpa. "People found a curious thing happened to sweat when they put down their tools and rested. It dried up and went away. So they've been trying to rest more and more ever since."

"What happened to the seven-day week?" demanded Pamela.

"Well, it began to change slowly. As people got better and better kinds of tools, they worked less and less. They worked only five days—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. They rested over the weekend on Saturday and Sunday."

"That still sounds pretty horrible to me," said Pamela.

"That's the way a lot of people felt, too," answered grandpa.

"They dreaded the thought of going to the office or factory on Monday, and they began to show up later and later or came down with one-day pneumonia."

"I guess you don't know what one-day pneumonia is either. That's what people got when they rested so hard on the weekend they didn't have the strength to go to work on Monday."

"At first attempts were made to solve the problem by shortening the work week and lengthening the weekend. By the year 2000 they worked only Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—and then had four straight days to rest up."

"Did that help them?"

"Not too much, child. People found that they didn't earn enough money on one job to enjoy the four-day weekends, which were getting more expensive all the time. So they began moonlighting more—that is, working at two or more jobs—to buy all the new gadgets their families wanted. And they got so tired from those long weeks that finally only about half the people were showing up on the job on Mondays."

"So what was done, gramps?"

"Well, at first the government thought of cutting the work week to two days," said grandpa, "until psychiatrists warned them that the strain of a five-day weekend might destroy the human race. So they solved the matter by dropping the seven-day week and creating a week with only two days in it—Mondays and Sundays, a day of work, a day of rest. And no long killing weekends."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — While most mutual funds have done quite poorly this year, a noticeable exception emerges from a study of the performance charts: A good many income funds are doing decidedly better than the averages.

Not that this is any great accomplishment, but it does stand out in an industry which lost 25.3 per cent of its assets from Jan. 1 to June 11, compared with a decline in the Dow Jones Industrial Average of only 16.9 per cent.

Even more interesting is the way in which some funds accomplished their feat: They simply got out of the stock market and put their money into bonds, commercial paper, short-term government notes and cash.

Of the top 25 performance leaders in the June 11 compilation by the Arthur Lipper Corp., 15 funds emphasized income as opposed to growth, speculation of simply conservation of capital. Another four were combined growth-income funds.

Three funds—Keystone B-1, Keystone B-2 and Investors Selective—actually increased their asset value per share, although only slightly. In addition, they yielded their owners from 5.8 per cent to 7 per cent in dividends.

Performance funds, which seek great growth of capital, were at the opposite end of the scale during the sharp decline in stock prices. Lipper lists 15 of them as having lost more than 50 per cent of value since Jan. 1.

Why should the performance funds, which returned glamorous profits during the rising stock market of the 1960s, fail so miserably in 1970? Apparently because they are simply committed to stocks as a way of life. The income funds, however, seemingly can better grasp short-term trends. Their philosophy permits them to invest in stocks when the stock market is sound; or in other securities, if they are temporarily more attractive.

Magna Income Trust, a small fund which ranked 19th in the Lipper list of 461, provides an illustration of the maneuvers used by the income funds.

On Jan. 22 the fund held more than 50 per cent of its assets in common stocks and only 1 per cent in cash. One week later it had increased its cash position to 24 per cent and reduced common stocks to 37 per cent.

By April 11 only 11 per cent of assets were in common stocks, and 81 per cent was in bonds, short-term notes and cash. Since then it has increased its stock position, but only to 14 per cent.

Most income funds are quite small, which permits more maneuverability than some of the performance funds, which grew during the 1960s to dinosauric proportions.

DICK SHAWN, boning up on Biblical history, discovered that King Solomon had over 700 wives, but that his father contented himself with 20. "I guess," reasons Shawn, "that the old man just wasn't the marrying kind."

In the lobby of one of New York's ritziest hotels, a number of coin phones are fastened to a wall near the cashier's cage. On three successive days, an alert reporter noticed a dazling, modishly attired blonde drop a dime in one of the phone boxes and dial what must have been a dead number (because the dime was always returned). Each time she would coo to the imaginary party at the other end, "I'm in a dreadful predicament, Pamela! Arthur has evidently forgotten our date and I have nobody to lunch with." And each of the three times a different gentleman who just happened to be using the phone adjacent quickly hung up, introduced himself to the lady—and took her off to lunch.

An old judge had an instinctive feeling for doling out justice in his frontier courtroom. One morning he opened proceedings with the following announcement: "Gentlemen, I have in hand a check—a bribe, I guess you journalists would call it—from the plaintiff for $10,000 and another from the defendant for $15,000. I propose to return $5,000 to the defendant and then will decide this case strictly on its merits."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What causes the embarrassing, growling noises of the stomach that always seem to happen in a quiet restaurant?

Mr. B. Y., Minnesota
Dear Mr. Y.: The only thing that can compensate for these rumbling noises is the loveliness of the technical name. It is known as borborygmus, and is the splashing, gurgling sound caused by air trapped in the stomach or the intestines.

Other places that seem to induce noise-making are churches and quiet theaters. When this happens to me, I look intently and accusingly at the person next to me and pretend that this strange organ music is not related to me in any way. Actually, air is always present in the intestinal tract. Doctors can listen for it with their stethoscopes. In some conditions, it has important meanings.

Almost always borborygmus is unimportant, although if it persists, its cause should be sought. Many people are chronic air swallows, especially those who eat rapidly and carry on excited conversations while eating.

Is PKU disease in an infant dangerous to him when he gets older?

Mr. and Mrs. M. S., California
Dear Mr. and Mrs. S.: PKU comes from a very special chemical, phenylketonuria, that is found in the urine of newborn children. For years little was known about this chemical which, when undetected, was found responsible for certain types of mental retardation.

PKU is an inherited condition in which a new-born infant cannot properly use a special form of protein. It is inherited when both parents are carriers without themselves giving any evidence of the disease.

All new-born babies now have their urine tested for the telltale phenylpyruvic acid in the urine. When this is found, intensive treatment with special diets can prevent the progress of the PKU disease and the possibility of mental retardation.

For the early detection of this condition many states have legal statutes that insist on routine examinations of the diapers of all new-born babies. Simple blood tests have also been devised for the early detection of PKU and these have been used with great success.

We were shocked to learn that our ten-year-old son has an ulcer of the stomach. No one ever seems to have heard of this in a child. Is this possible?

Mr. N. H., Michigan
Dear Mr. H.: It most certainly is possible and the diagnosis is a testimonial to the keen observation and diagnostic ability of your doctor. Contrary to general opinion, young children can and do develop ulcers of the stomach and the small intestines.

True, they are not as frequent in children as they are in adults. Doctors are becoming more and more aware that an ulcer can be present with symptoms that resemble adult ulcers. Medical and psychological consultation is an excellent combination to control this condition in a child.

Excessive fatigue reduces the body's resistance to infection.

Reforming The Labor Act

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The labor ironies in America mount. For one thing, despite the fact that the government belongs to the people, Postmaster General Blount, bowing to the AFL-CIO's George Meany, would like to limit post office employment to members of Mr. Meany's union. The proposition is to keep Americans from freely working for something they theoretically own.

A second irony attends the recent newspaper wage settlement in New York City. The New York Times yields to nobody in its verbal stance against inflation, yet when the pinch came, it signed one of the most inflationary labor contracts in journalistic history. True enough, it had little option if it wanted to go on publishing. But with New York City newspaper employees getting a 41 percent raise over a three-year period, one waits with apprehension to see how the "big town" settlement will affect the papers out beyond the Hudson River. A horrendous statistic comes to mind: sixty years ago there were some 700 cities with more than two competing newspapers; today the list is down to below forty-five. Maybe automation, which the unions prevent in New York, will save the day in the provinces.

What to do about the power of the unions to get raises that outrun productivity increases? Senator John Tower of Texas thinks he has an answer. He has introduced a bill that would divest the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) of its jurisdiction in unfair labor practice cases in favor of restoring that jurisdiction to the Federal courts. This would amount to a return to the status quo as it was thirty-five years ago. Hearings on the Tower labor law reform bill (S-3671) will begin before the Senate Judiciary Committee on July 1. Sponsorship list that includes Senators Ervin of North Carolina, Bennett of Utah, Dole of Kansas, Goldwater and Fannin of Arizona, and Thurmond of South Carolina.

Tower insists that the NLRB has gone out of its way to show favoritism to labor in all too many cases. "It has done so," he says "by deliberately subverting the principle of free employee choice, which the law guarantees, and demonstrating an obvious preference for enforced unionism."

A recent report by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Separation of the Powers tends to substantiate Senator Tower's criticism. It has urged Congress to consider the "feasibility of substantive reform of the National Labor Relations Act." The NLRB, according to the subcommittee, has consistently "thwarted the intent of Congress" by "applying double standards and ignoring plain legislative mandates." The consequences are that "the board has unreasonably emphasized the establishment and maintenance of collective bargaining and strong unions to the exclusion of other statutory purposes which often involve the rights of individual employees." The subcommittee

In the South Pacific island kingdom, Tonga, food is plentiful but land is not. Every Tongan boy is eligible to receive 84 acres of tillable land on reaching 16. Not all of the island's total area of 269 square miles is arable, however, and many choose not to move to outlying islands to claim available plots.

Because the Date Line curves around the south Pacific kingdom, Tonga, the new day dawns on the islands earlier than at any other inhabited place on the globe. Tongans call their islands, "the place where time begins."

report insists that the NLRB's general counsel, who possesses an unreviewable power to issue or refuse to issue complaints of unfair labor practices, has often cited in an arbitrary manner. Individual rights have been frequently subordinated to the interests of the union leaders, even to the point of preventing a free choice of action by a majority of employees.

Senator Tower is not anti-union but he thinks the NLRB has unjustly penalized workers by denying them their rights of free speech under the First Amendment. The Senate subcommittee notes that the NLRB has "onesidedly tolerated scurrilous attacks on employers." "Of all the regulatory agencies," says Tower, arguing for giving the Federal courts the power to deal with unfair practice cases, "the labor Board has established the worst reputation. It has ignored the intent of Congress. It has become a policymaking body and has not hesitated to rewrite the law to suit its own cases." These are harsh words; they will surely precipitate one of the harsher Congressional fights when the Tower bill comes up for consideration next month.

Sugar Ray Robinson

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meet Sugar Ray Robinson, actor. "I've been a ham all my life," he explains. "Why shouldn't I get paid for it?"

The former middleweight and welterweight boxing champion is getting paid regularly for the acting chores. He just finished a role as a policeman in National General's "What Are We Going to Do without Skipper?" He has also played roles in such television series as "Mannix," "Mission: Impossible," "Land of the Giants" and next seasons "Barefoot in the Park."

Not to mention the beer commercial he did with Rocky Graziano.

"The residuals are great, but I wish it had been for a soft drink," he says. "I don't drink beer."

He's selective about his film roles: "I was up for a good part at Fox, but they wanted me to play a dopefiend. I couldn't do it. I spent too many years building up a good name; that means more to me than the champion-ship."

As he himself indicated, Robinson has been acting for a long time. Before, he was mainly playing Sugar Ray Robinson. Now he enacts other roles as well.

"So far I haven't taken any acting lessons, and I don't think I will," he remarks. "I've talked about this to friends of mine like Dick Burton, Frank Sinatra and Marlon Brando. They tell me that some actors study for years to be able to move the way that I do naturally."

"Maybe if I studied what I was doing, I'd spoil it."

Sugar Ray will be 49 next month, but you'd never know it. His belly is as flat and hard as when he was decking all comers in the ring. He weighs approximately one pound over his fighting weight of 160. He philosophizes:

"If you don't keep your body alive, it won't keep you alive; that's what I believe. If I don't get down to the gym to work out and relieve my frustrations on the boxing bag, I don't feel right. And I never ride elevators; I walk up the stairs instead."

Robinson has a new calling which he feels is more important than his careers in boxing and acting. That's the Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation. He now is devoting most of his spare time to it, organizing events, making appearances and raising funds.

He has the cooperation of the Los Angeles Council of Churches and is working on a San Francisco branch. His current aim is to organize a statewide Olympic Games for youth of all races.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S., California Dear Mr. and Mrs. S.: PKU comes from a very special chemical, phenylketonuria, that is found in the urine of newborn children. For years little was known about this chemical which, when undetected, was found responsible for certain types of mental retardation.

PKU is an inherited condition in which a new-born infant cannot properly use a special form of protein. It is inherited when both parents are carriers without themselves giving any evidence of the disease.

All new-born babies now have their urine tested for the telltale phenylpyruvic acid in the urine. When this is found, intensive treatment with special diets can prevent the progress of the PKU disease and the possibility of mental retardation.

For the early detection of this condition many states have legal statutes that insist on routine examinations of the diapers of all new-born babies. Simple blood tests have also been devised for the early detection of PKU and these have been used with great success.

We were shocked to learn that our ten-year-old son has an ulcer of the stomach. No one ever seems to have heard of this in a child. Is this possible?

Mr. N. H., Michigan Dear Mr. H.: It most certainly is possible and the diagnosis is a testimonial to the keen observation and diagnostic ability of your doctor. Contrary to general opinion, young children can and do develop ulcers of the stomach and the small intestines.

True, they are not as frequent in children as they are in adults. Doctors are becoming more and more aware that an ulcer can be present with symptoms that resemble adult ulcers. Medical and psychological consultation is an excellent combination to control this condition in a child.

An ocean explorer believes he has found remains of Christopher Columbus' flag ship, the Santa Maria, on a reef off Haiti's northern shore. If he's right this has got to be one of the most interesting discoveries since 1492.

Let's hope the explorer is more accurate in his guess than Columbus was. Remember Old Chris thought he had discovered India?

Reforming The Labor Act

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The labor ironies in America mount. For one thing, despite the fact that the government belongs to the people, Postmaster General Blount, bowing to the AFL-CIO's George Meany, would like to limit post office employment to members of Mr. Meany's union. The proposition is to keep Americans from freely working for something they theoretically own.

A second irony attends the recent newspaper wage settlement in New York City. The New York Times yields to nobody in its verbal stance against inflation, yet when the pinch came, it signed one of the most inflationary labor contracts in journalistic history. True enough, it had little option if it wanted to go on publishing. But with New York City newspaper employees getting a 41 percent raise over a three-year period, one waits with apprehension to see how the "big town" settlement will affect the papers out beyond the Hudson River. A horrendous statistic comes to mind: sixty years ago there were some 700 cities with more than two competing newspapers; today the list is down to below forty-five. Maybe automation, which the unions prevent in New York, will save the day in the provinces.

What to do about the power of the unions to get raises that outrun productivity increases? Senator John Tower of Texas thinks he has an answer. He has introduced a bill that would divest the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) of its jurisdiction in unfair labor practice cases in favor of restoring that jurisdiction to the Federal courts. This would amount to a return to the status quo as it was thirty-five years ago. Hearings on the Tower labor law reform bill (S-3671) will begin before the Senate Judiciary Committee on July 1. Sponsorship list that includes Senators Ervin of North Carolina, Bennett of Utah, Dole of Kansas, Goldwater and Fannin of Arizona, and Thurmond of South Carolina.

Tower insists that the NLRB has gone out of its way to show favoritism to labor in all too many cases. "It has done so," he says, "by deliberately subverting the principle of free employee choice, which the law guarantees, and demonstrating an obvious preference for enforced unionism."

A recent report by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Separation of the Powers tends to substantiate Senator Tower's criticism. It has urged Congress to consider the "feasibility of substantive reform of the National Labor Relations Act." The NLRB, according to the subcommittee, has consistently "thwarted the intent of Congress" by "applying double standards and ignoring plain legislative mandates." The consequences are that "the board has unreasonably emphasized the establishment and maintenance of collective bargaining and strong unions to the exclusion of other statutory purposes which often involve the rights of individual employees." The subcommittee

In the South Pacific island kingdom, Tonga, food is plentiful but land is not. Every Tongan boy is eligible to receive 84 acres of tillable land on reaching 16. Not all of the island's total area of 269 square miles is arable, however, and many choose not to move to outlying islands to claim available plots.

Because the Date Line curves around the south Pacific kingdom, Tonga, the new day dawns on the islands earlier than at any other inhabited place on the globe. Tongans call their islands, "the place where time begins."

Spanish war veteran Samuel Spangler, Tarlton, died of blood poisoning after he was injured on Memorial Day assisting in butchering a beef at a neighboring farm.

report insists that the NLRB's general counsel, who possesses an unreviewable power to issue or refuse to issue complaints of unfair labor practices, has often cited in an arbitrary manner. Individual rights have been frequently subordinated to the interests of the union leaders, even to the point of preventing a free choice of action by a majority of employees.

Senator Tower is not anti-union but he thinks the NLRB has unjustly penalized workers by denying them their rights of free speech under the First Amendment. The Senate subcommittee notes that the NLRB has a "onesidedly tolerated" attitude toward employers. "Of all the regulatory agencies," says Tower, arguing for giving the Federal courts the power to deal with unfair practice cases, "the labor Board has established the worst reputation. It has ignored the intent of Congress. It has become a policymaking body and has not hesitated to rewrite the law to suit its own cases." These are harsh words; they will surely precipitate one of the harshest Congressional fights when the Tower bill comes up for consideration next month.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meet Sugar Ray Robinson, actor. "I've been a ham all my life," he explains. "Why shouldn't I get paid for it?"

The former middleweight and welterweight boxing champion is getting paid regularly for the acting chores. He just finished a role as a policeman in National General's "What Are We Going to Do without Skipper?" He has also played roles in such television series as "Mannix," "Mission: Impossible," "Land of the Giants," and next seasons "Barefoot in the Park."

Not to mention the beer commercial he did with Rocky Graziano. "The residuals are great, but I wish it had been for a soft drink," he says. "I don't drink beer."

He's selective about his film roles: "I was up for a good part at Fox, but they wanted me to play a dopefiend. I couldn't do it. I spent too many years building up a good name; that means more to me than the championship."

As he himself indicated, Robinson has been acting for a long time. Before, he was mainly playing Sugar Ray Robinson. Now he enacts other roles as well. "So far I haven't taken any acting lessons, and I don't think I will," he remarks. "I've Robinson has a new calling which he feels is more important than his careers in boxing and acting. That's the Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation. He now is devoting most of his spare time to it, organizing events, making appearances and raising funds.

He has the cooperation of the Los Angeles Council of Churches and is working on a San Francisco branch. His current aim is to organize a statewide Olympic Games for youth of all races.

The Garden Corner

According to reports many families are enjoying fresh vegetables from their gardens such as tomatoes, green beans, lettuce and even sweet corn.

A good idea is to get a garden-sitter while on vacation. It's not fun coming home to raggedy grass, parched petunias and aphids where roses should be.

Mow high and carefully. If you do skin the white birch, apply tree paint, the arborist's band aid. Remove sod in a circle around trees and shrubs and apply a mulch, you'll grow a better plant and mow a safer swath.

Bare-Bosomed Grandma Weds Again, In Nightspot

By WILLIAM CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — It is safe to say Margie Grant is a somewhat improbable grandma.

A divorcee, Mrs. Grant was married for the second time recently in a topless wedding at a nightspot where she works as a bar bare-bosomed waitress.

A 37-year-old of statuesque proportions, red hair and sparkling green eyes, she carries around a wallet bearing the inscription "Something to Brag About."

Inside are pictures of her five children, her son-in-law, and her first grandchild, born June 8.

"People who come in the place think its a blast to be waited on by a topless waitress she said. "And then when I tell them its grandmother Margie—that really blows their minds."

Mrs. Grant, whose 16-year first marriage ended in divorce, is remarkably well-preserved for a grandmother with children ranging in age up to 19.

She says her measurements are 42-24-36 and at the slightest provocation will produce a tape measure to prove it.

Her second husband, a 27-year-old security guard at an amusement park, was a customer who used to drop in once a week.

He expressed qualms when Margie breached the idea of taking her marriage vows in working garb, but she talked him around.

The Garden Corner

According to reports many families are enjoying fresh vegetables from their gardens such as tomatoes, green beans, lettuce and even sweet corn.

A good idea is to get a garden-sitter while on vacation. It's not fun coming home to ragged grass, parched petunias and aphids where roses should be.

Mow high and carefully. If you do skin the white birch, apply tree paint, the arborist's band aid. Remove sod in a circle around trees and shrubs and apply a mulch, you'll grow a better plant and mow a safer swath.

Bare-Bosomed Grandma Weds Again, In Nightspot

By WILLIAM CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — It is safe to say Margie Grant is a somewhat improbable grandma.

A divorcee, Mrs. Grant was married for the second time recently in a topless wedding at a nightspot where she works as a bar bare-bosomed waitress.

A 37-year-old of statuesque proportions, red hair and sparkling green eyes, she carries around a wallet bearing the inscription "Something to Brag About."

Inside are pictures of her five children, her son-in-law, and her first grandchild, born June 8.

"People who come in the place think its a blast to be waited on by a topless waitress she said. "And then when I tell them its grandmom Margie—that really blows their minds."

Mrs. Grant, whose 16-year first marriage ended in divorce, is remarkably well-preserved for a grandmother with children ranging in age up to 19.

She says her measurements are 42-24-36 and at the slightest provocation will produce a tape measure to prove it.

Her second husband, a 27-year-old security guard at an amusement park, was a customer who used to drop in once a week.

He expressed qualms when Margie breached the idea of taking her marriage vows in working garb, but she talked him around.

Dr. Joseph Skaggs of Celina, Ohio, was piloting the plane when it crashed Thursday, according to police. He was killed and his wife and son were taken to District Memorial Hospital in Andrews, where they were listed in serious condition.

Harold and Hugh Williams of Robbinsville, who were fishing in Snowbird creek at the time, told police that late Thursday afternoon they noticed that the Skaggs plane was losing speed and altitude.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Because of a technicality, Ohio Rep. Edward Burden has lost a round in court on a petition to void the May 5 Democratic primary in which he was defeated.

Judge William S. Mathews of the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court dismissed the petition Thursday since the contestor, Burden, had not signed it. His attorney had.

Mathews said that the election statute requiring the contestors' signature is of "Strict construction."

Apathy Greet Appointment Of Lodge To Vatican Post

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With a new presidential envoy, Henry Cabot Lodge, scheduled to take up duties at the Vatican in the next few days, the reaction among Protestants has been relatively muted compared to the hubbub the issue aroused in the past.

Some have protested. Most, however, have taken the decision calmly, without objections. American Roman Catholic leaders themselves, who had shown scant concern with the matter since speculation about it first arose a year ago, have registered only low-key approval.

Two copies of the Tax Budget as tentatively adopted for the Teays Valley School District of Route Two, Ashville, Ohio in Pickaway County, Ohio, are on file in the office of the Teays Valley Board of Education of said school district. These are for public inspection; and a Public Hearing on said Budget will be held at the office of the Teays Valley Board of Education in said Ashville, Ohio, on Monday, the 12th day of July, 1970, at 8:00 o'clock P.M.

Bible With Personal Benefit." George Zimmerman will be the speaker. Bible study will be "Remain Health In Faith."

The Sunday morning worship period and Church School will be held at the same time each week at Pontious and Emanuel United Methodist Churches. Services at Emmanuel Church will be Church School 9:30 a.m. Morning Worship 10:30. Pontious Church, Morning Worship 9:15 and Church School 10:20. Sunday evening and Wednesday evening services will alternate from one church to the other beginning June 28 at Pontious. All evening services will begin promptly at 7:30.

Paul Jackson will be the layman in charge of the service Sunday morning at St. Paul's AME Church. Pastor Mary Lou Henderson will be guest speaker at Clare United Methodist Church in Columbus.

al at President Nixon's recent appointment.

A "ho-hum reaction," summed up the National Catholic Reporter. A "bundle of pluses and minuses," said the Jesuit weekly, America.

"Both Protestants and Catholics have been monumentally unresponsive," says the Rev. Dr. Dean M. Kelley, director for governmental relations of the National Council of Churches. He said Nixon tempered the impact by naming only a personal representative, rather than a regular ambassador.

The changed outlook also reflected two major developments in religious life in the last decade: the upsurge of Catholic-Protestant amity, and the waning Catholic interest in ties making the Church so-called "partners of the prince."

Some Protestant leaders, however saw the step as a one-sided gesture, an irrelevant throwback to a past-age of Church-state entanglements and extensive Vatican territorial jurisdiction.

"It's basically an outdated kind of relationship," commented the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, an American Presbyterian leader, now general secretary of the World Council of Churches, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Noting that Nixon cited the Pope's position as an "outstanding moral leader" as a reason for needing contacts with him, Dr. Blake suggested the same

Ohio Solon Loses Round In Court

CINCINNATI (AP)—Because of a technicality, Ohio Rep. Edward Burden has lost a round in court on a petition to void the May 5 Democratic primary in which he was defeated.

Judge William S. Mathews of the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court dismissed the petition Thursday since the contestor, Burden, had not signed it. His attorney had.

Mathews said that the election statute requiring the contestors' signature is of "Strict construction."

Apathy Greet's Appointment Of Lodge To Vatican Post

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With a new presidential envoy, Henry Cabot Lodge, scheduled to take up duties at the Vatican in the next few days, the reaction among Protestants has been relatively muted compared to the hubbub the issue aroused in the past.

Some have protested. Most, however, have taken the decision calmly, without objections.

American Roman Catholic leaders themselves, who had shown scant concern with the matter since speculation about it first arose a year ago, have registered only low-key approval.

Bible With Personal Benefit." George Zimmerman will be the speaker. Bible study will be "Remain Health In Faith."

The Sunday morning worship period and Church School will be held at the same time each week at Pontious and Emanuel United Methodist Churches. Services at Emmanuel Church will be Church School 9:30 a.m. Morning Worship 10:30. Pontious Church, Morning Worship 9:15 and Church School 10:20. Sunday evening and Wednesday evening services will alternate from one church to the other beginning June 28 at Pontious. All evening services will begin promptly at 7:30.

Paul Jackson will be the layman in charge of the service Sunday morning at St. Paul's AME Church. Pastor Mary Lou Henderson will be guest speaker at Clare United Methodist Church in Columbus.

at President Nixon's recent appointment.

A "ho-hum reaction," summed up the National Catholic Reporter. A "bundle of pluses and minuses," said the Jesuit weekly, America.

"Both Protestants and Catholics have been monumentally unresponsive," says the Rev. Dr. Dean M. Kelley, director for governmental relations of the National Council of Churches. He said Nixon tempered the impact by naming only a personal representative, rather than a regular ambassador.

The changed outlook also reflected two major developments in religious life in the last decade: the upsurge of Catholic-Protestant amity, and the waning Catholic interest in ties making the Church so-called "partners of the prince."

Some Protestant leaders, however saw the step as a one-sided gesture, an irrelevant throwback to a past-age of Church-state entanglements and extensive Vatican territorial jurisdiction.

"It's basically an outdated kind of relationship," commented the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, an American Presbyterian leader, now general secretary of the World Council of Churches, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Noting that Nixon cited the Pope's position as an "outstanding moral leader" as a reason for needing contacts with him, Dr. Blake suggested the same reason could justify liaison with World Council moral leaders.

However, he said most Christian leaders—Catholics and Protestants alike—were more interested in interchurch relationships and common mission than in diplomatic formalities with governments.

Sharpest protest to the naming of Lodge, an Episcopalian, as the President's Vatican envoy came from Baptists, and from a group opposing church-state ties, Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

Its executive director, Glenn B. Archer, called the appointment "a violation of this nation's tradition of separation of church and state and a false appeal for Catholic votes." He said it was religiously discriminatory, preferring one church over "others which have received no such appointment."

Bootlegging And Contraband Liquor Plague Ohio Officials

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While the flow of moonshine has dwindled in Ohio in recent years, bootlegging activities and contraband traffic continue to be major problems facing state liquor officials.

Bootlegging—the purchase of liquor from a state store and then reselling it at a profit when stores are closed—is the most persistent problem, according to Floyd C. Moon, deputy director of the Ohio Department of liquor control.

He said the practice is concentrated in highly populated urban areas.

"We put liquor stores conveniently throughout the state, but it must be human nature or something that will make a person buy liquor illegally at a greater cost," Moon said.

Contraband traffic, or the purchase of liquor in one state for sale in another, is most acute along the Ohio-Kentucky border, according to Moon.

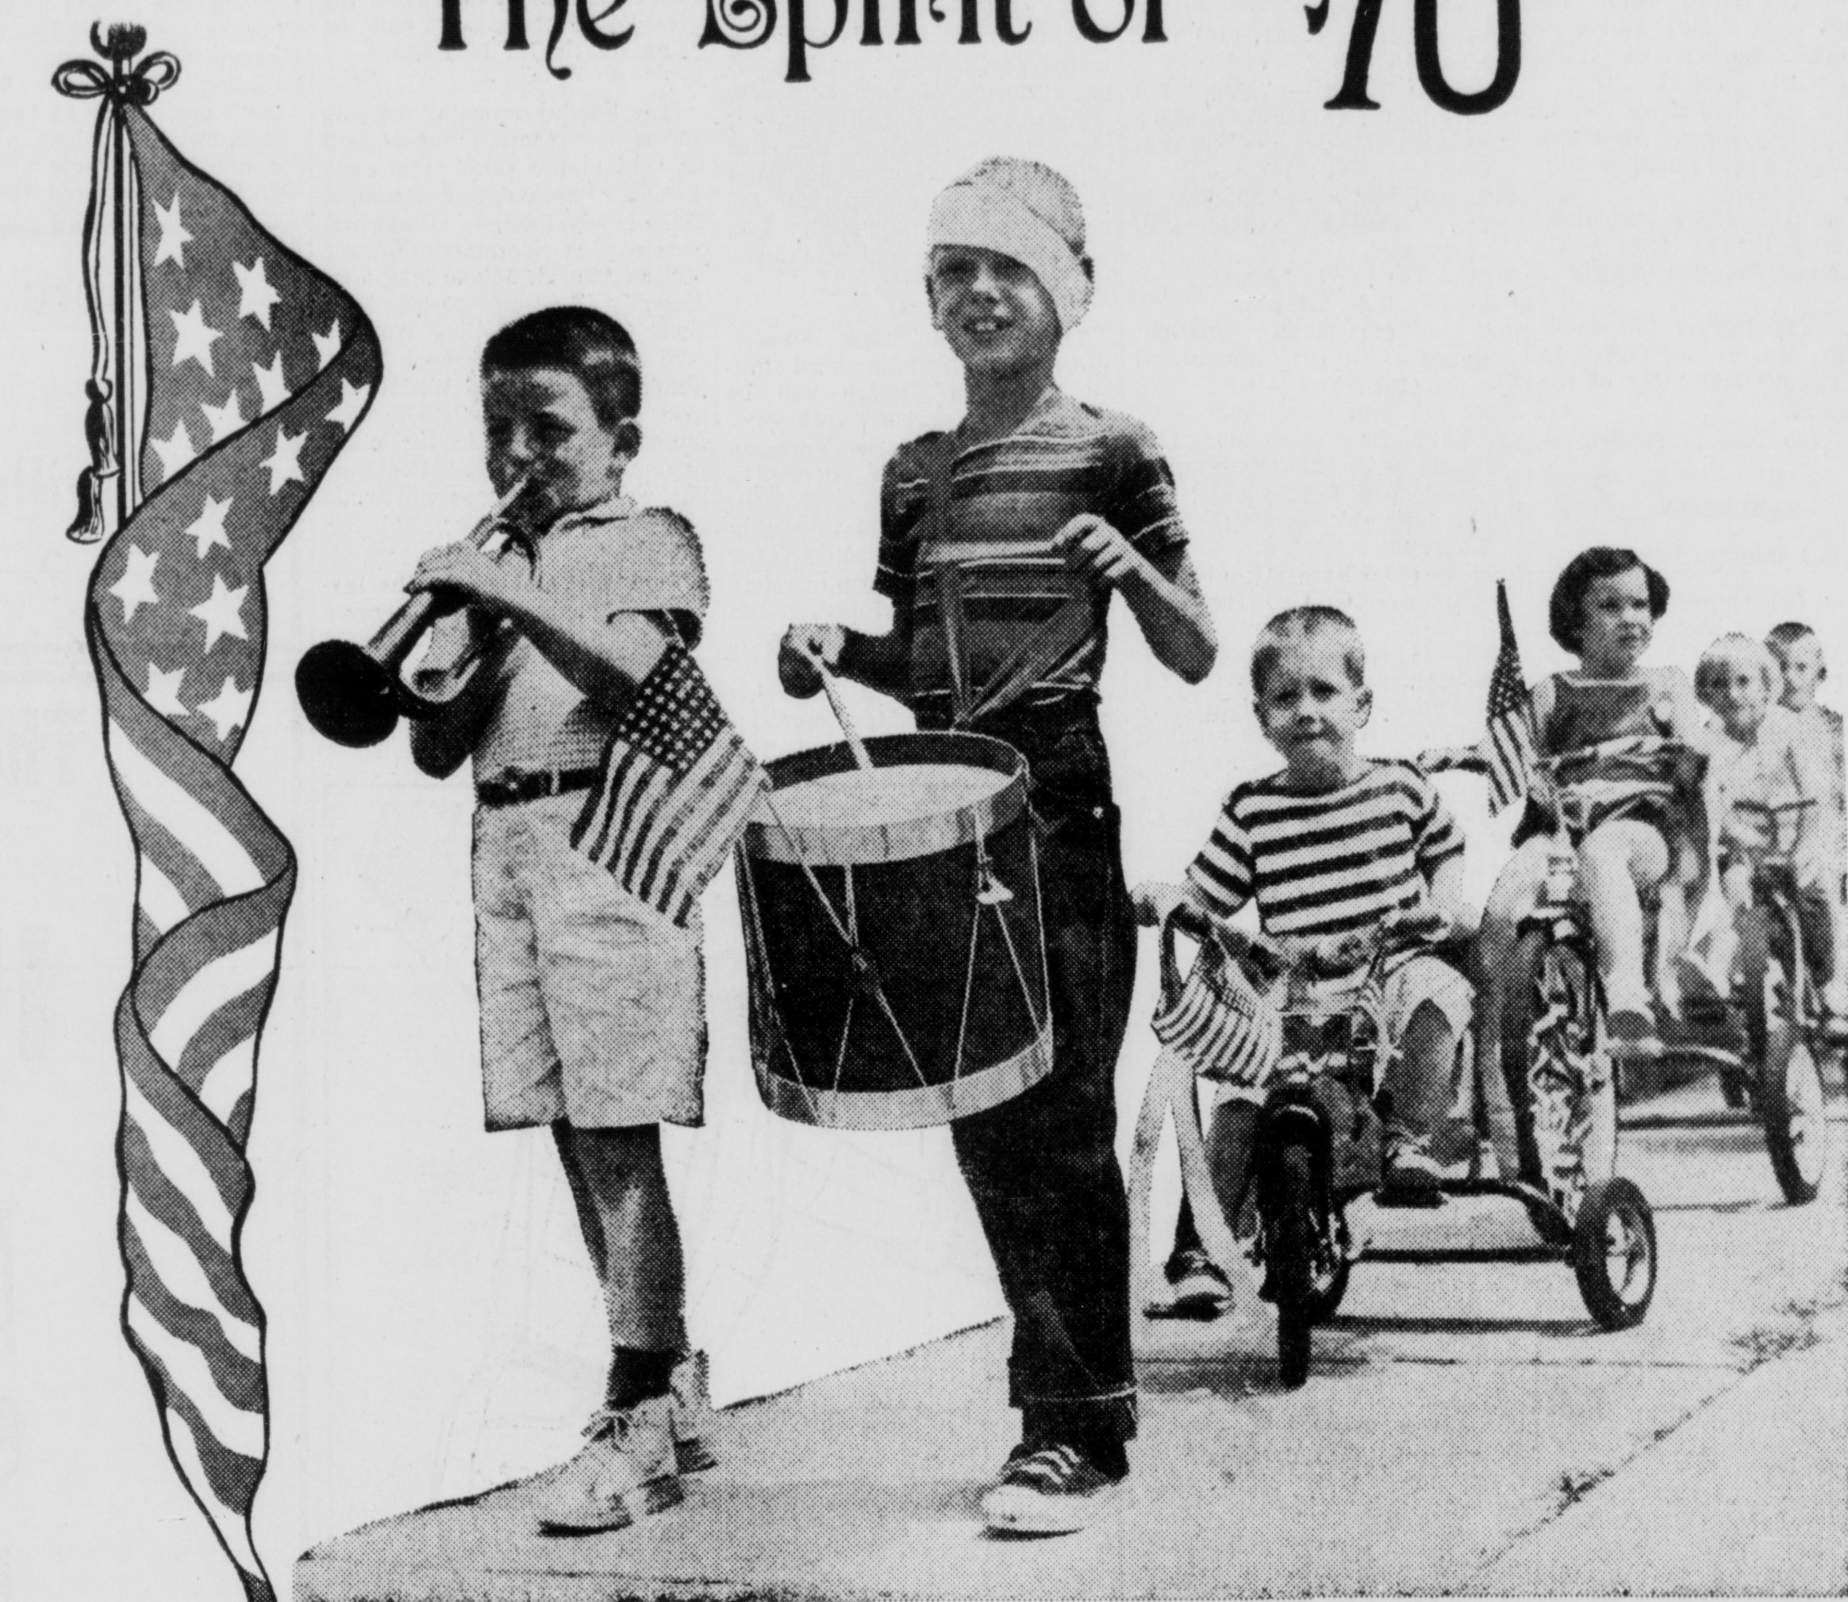

This is because large purchases can be made in Kentucky at a considerable discount. Other bordering states have price structures similar to Ohio's.

Another sensitive contraband area is Lake Erie during the summer. Moon said the department has patrol boats in operation to prevent Canadian liquor from illegally entering the state.

While the flow of moonshine is not too great anymore—about 30 stills were seized last year compared to 80 five years ago—the health hazards in drinking illegally manufactured booze still are considerable.

Consumption of large amounts of lead salts often found in the ersatz liquor can cause blindness, brain damage, paralysis and death.

The Spirit of '70

People sometimes make cynical remarks about flag-waving. But it sure beats flag-burning.

Our belief in this nation is something far deeper than mere patriotism. It is the expression of honor and respect for the institutions and blessings we possess as Americans.

One of those institutions is a church independent of state control. One of those blessings is the right to worship according to the dictates of conscience.

Of course, there are some earnest, well-meaning people who don't give a nickel for the Church—or to it either. Even their right not to worship is equally guaranteed by our Constitution!

That kind of freedom is hard to come by. It was hard to come by in 1776. And, in our opinion, it is best understood and most firmly preserved by those who thank God for it.

Bootlegging And Contraband Liquor Plague Ohio Officials

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While the flow of moonshine has dwindled in Ohio in recent years, bootlegging activities and contraband traffic continue to be major problems facing state liquor officials.

Bootlegging—the purchase of liquor from a state store and then reselling it at a profit when stores are closed—is the most persistent problem, according to Floyd C. Moon, deputy director of the Ohio Department of liquor control.

He said the practice is concentrated in highly populated urban areas.

"We put liquor stores conveniently throughout the state, but it must be human nature or something that will make a person buy liquor illegally at a greater cost," Moon said.

Contraband traffic, or the purchase of liquor in one state for sale in another, is most acute along the Ohio-Kentucky border, according to Moon.

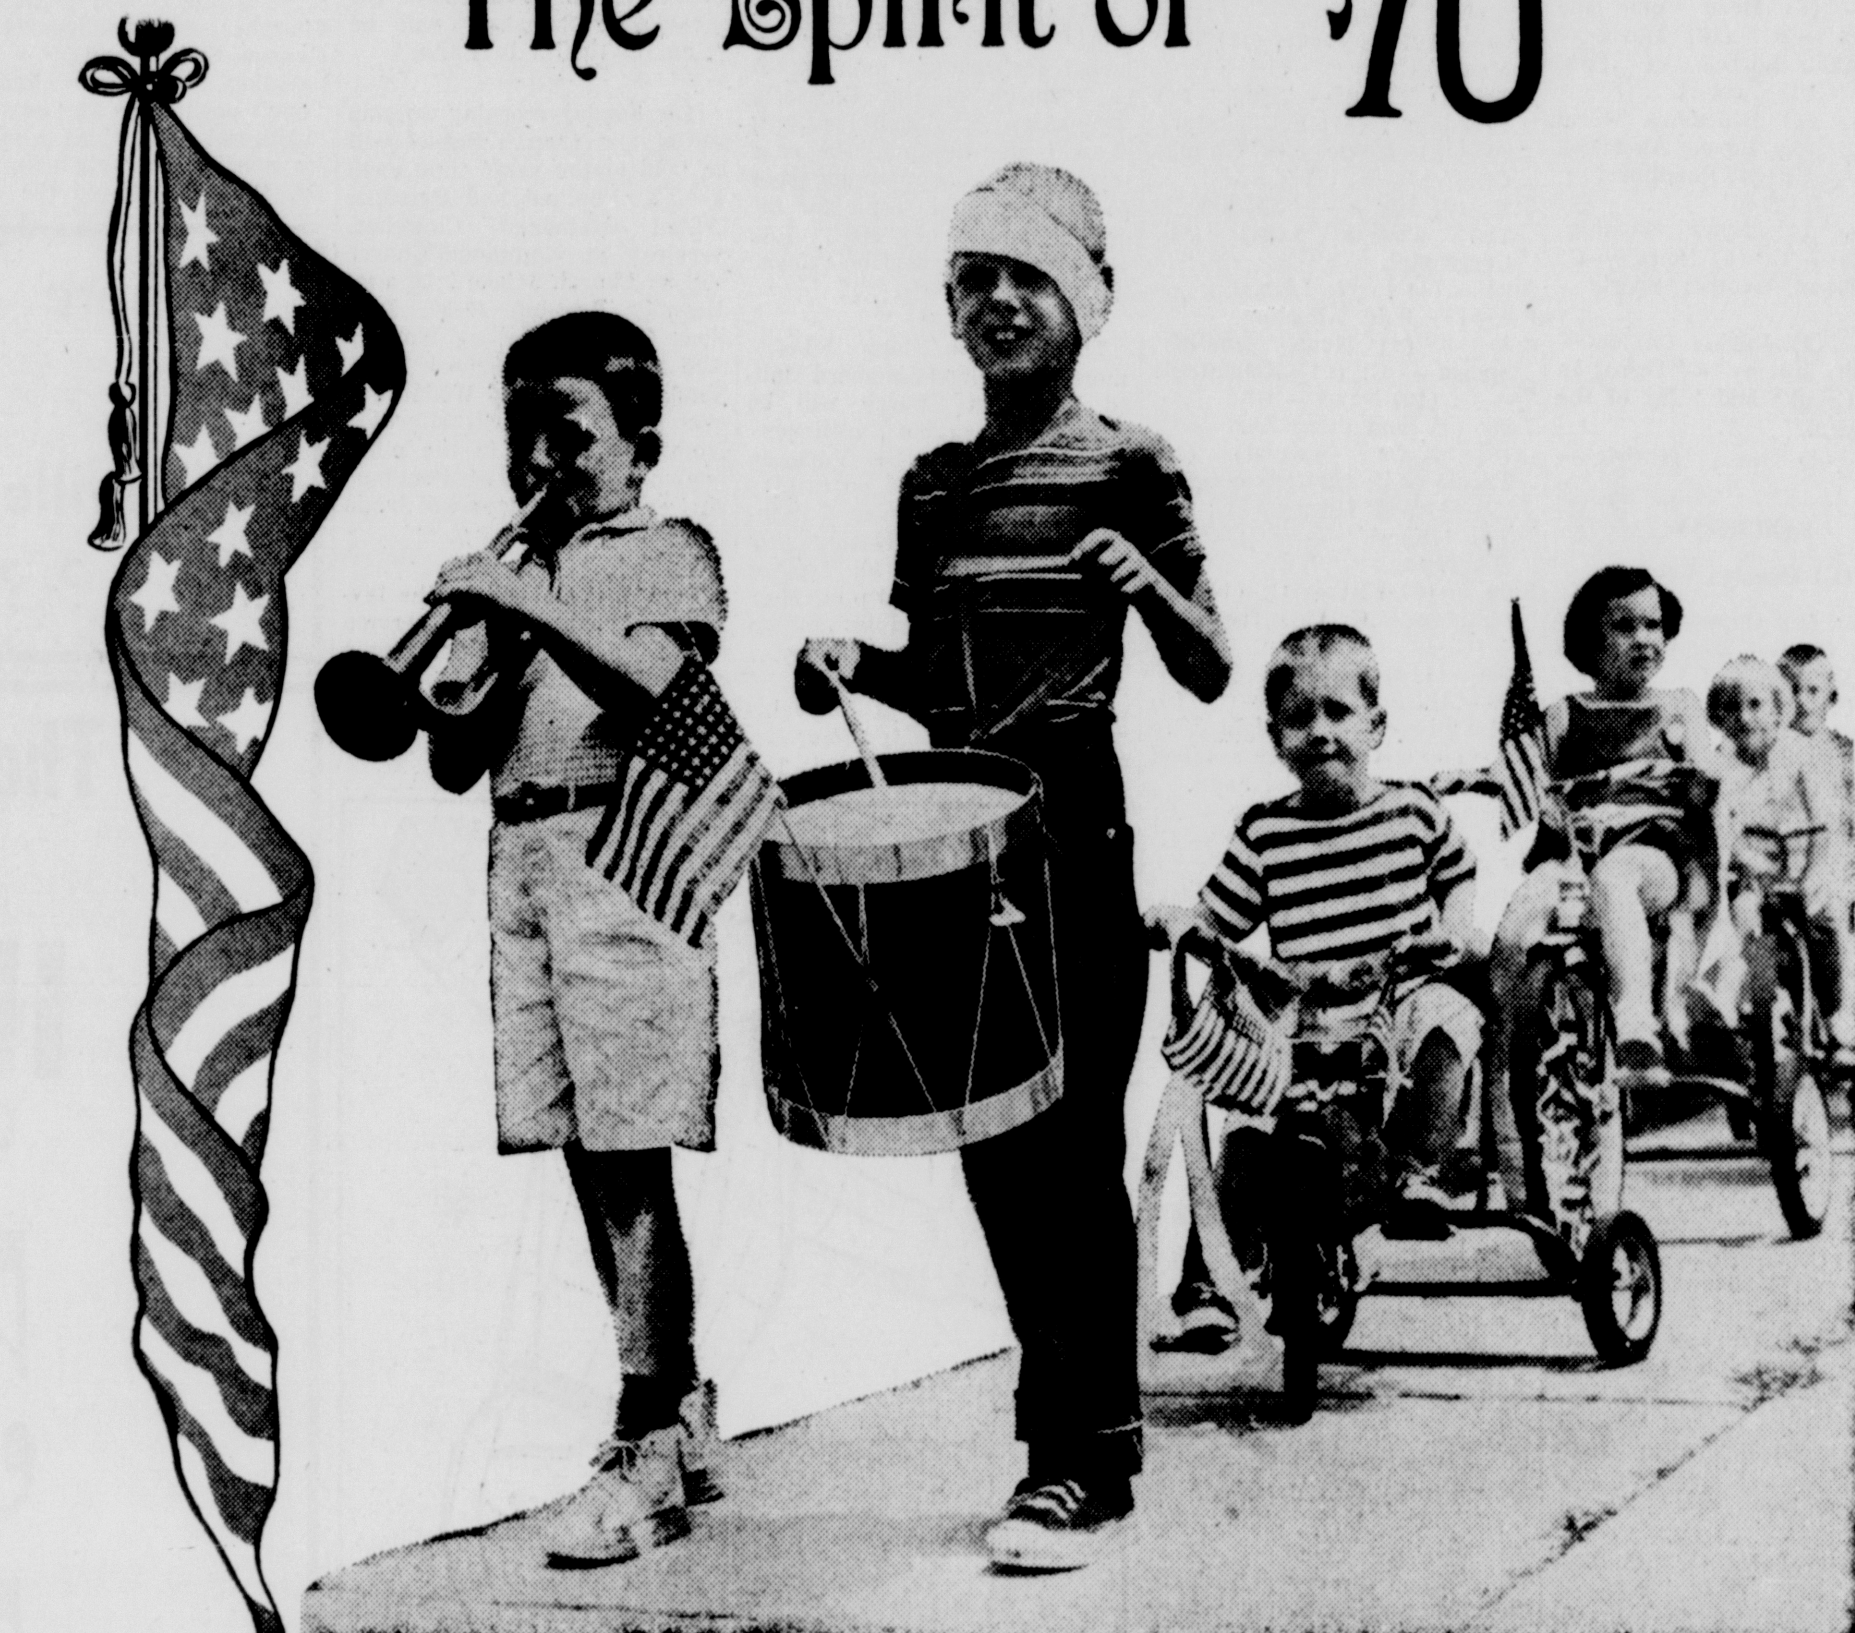

This is because large purchases can be made in Kentucky at a considerable discount. Other bordering states have price structures similar to Ohio's.

Another sensitive contraband area is Lake Erie during the summer. Moon said the department has patrol boats in operation to prevent Canadian liquor from illegally entering the state.

While the flow of moonshine is not too great anymore—about 30 stills were seized last year compared to 80 five years ago—the health hazards in drinking illegally manufactured booze still are considerable.

Consumption of large amounts of lead salts often found in the ersatz liquor can cause blindness, brain damage, paralysis and death.

The Spirit of '70

People sometimes make cynical remarks about flag-waving. But it sure beats flag-burning.

Our belief in this nation is something far deeper than mere patriotism. It is the expression of honor and respect for the institutions and blessings we possess as Americans.

One of those institutions is a church independent of state control. One of those blessings is the right to worship according to the dictates of conscience.

Of course, there are some earnest, well-meaning people who don't give a nickel for the Church — or to it either. Even their right not to worship is equally guaranteed by our Constitution!

That kind of freedom is hard to come by. It was hard to come by in 1776. And, in our opinion, it is best understood and most firmly preserved by those who thank God for it.

The Adult Reading World

A new book recently added to the collection of Pickaway County District Public Library should attract many readers. It is "Joys and Sorrows: Reflections" by Pablo Casals, as told to Albert E. Kahn. Most "As Told To" biographies give a clouded picture of the man who is supposedly the author, but this is not true of "Joys and Sorrows". One readily believes that, as Mr. Kahn states in his preface. There is, moreover, such color and cadence to Casals' own words, so natural a poetry in his personal reminiscences and reflections, that his voice seems wedded irrevocably to the telling of history.

The book will be of interest to musicians, since Casals during his long years of concertizing — years which began around the turn of the century — has been an intimate associate and friend of almost all of the musicians who made musical history during these decades. But "Joys and Sorrows" is much more than a book about music written by a great cellist. It is above all the enunciation of the principles of a man who has given most of his money and much of his life towards fighting oppression, helping the downtrodden and opposing the horror of war. His account of the events leading up to and during the Spanish Civil War burns with convictions he fought to support.

Indeed, Pablo Casals has led many lives. Born in poverty, he acquired great wealth most of which he has given away. At home in the palaces of Spanish and Belgian royalty, his most passionate admirers and closest friends have been the men associated with him in making music or the poorest peasants of Catalonia and the working men of Barcelona. A fervent patriot with the greatest love for his native Spain, he has been in self-imposed exile from the country since he abandoned his estates there during the Spanish Civil War.

The opening paragraph of "Joys and Sorrows" reveals the essence of this remarkable man. "On my last birthday I was ninety-three years old. That is not young, of course. In fact, it is older than ninety. But age is a relative matter. If you continue to work, and to observe the beauty in the world about you, you find that age does not necessarily mean getting old. At least not in the ordinary sense.

I feel many things more intensely than ever before, and for me life grows more fascinating." Pablo Casals demonstrated this conviction when at eighty-five, stricken with a serious heart attack on the eve of the first Puerto Rico Festival, he fought his way back to a schedule of daily work impossible for many men thirty years his junior in age; and he again demonstrated it when, nearing ninety, he embarked on a personal peace crusade, taking his music to a score of lands.

Superbly illustrated with many photographs, "Joys and Sorrows" is an unself-conscious portrait of a supremely lovable human being.

Given To Pair For Bank Holdup

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Twelve-year prison sentences were given Thursday to two members of a Phoenix, Ariz., motorcycle gang who admitted being involved in the $12,000 holdup last December of the Lucas (Ohio) State Bank.

Larry Rolfe, 22, and Armond P. Reno, 27, were sentenced by U. S. District Judge Thomas D. Lambros.

Also appearing before the judge was John A. Loas, 25, of Parma, who admitted seeking $50 bribes from persons hoping to enlist in the Ohio National Guard. Judge Lambros asked for a probation department report on Loas, who is a member of the Guard's 107th Armored Cavalry Regiment.

Earl W. Tite, 70, of South Euclid, was placed on probation for two years after admitting he falsified his income tax returns for 1964 and 1965, involving $64,000 in undeclared income.

Future Of Whaling Industry Dismal, Commission Fears

LONDON (AP) — The future is dismal for the whaling industry, faced with declining sales and shrinking herds.

Fifteen members of the International Whaling Commission met in London this week for its 22nd annual conference to discuss the drastic shrinkage of the markets.

Ronald G. Wall of the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries said that since 1952 the Antarctic quota—the number of whales the commission allows whalers to kill—has dropped from 16,000 to 2,700. The number of Antarctic whaling expeditions shrank from 20 to six.

Norway, once king of the whaling fleets, sent out only one expedition last season and none the year before—the first time in 50 years they did not sail the Antarctic whale seas.

Whale carcasses are towed to a factory ship where they are processed into meat for pet food, oil, bone and meal—the main products.

Whale oil 100 years ago was the main source of light. Now the sources are gas and electricity. The decline of the whale-bone corset worn by women early in the century also hit the industry.

Whale oil is still used in margarine, cosmetics, linoleum and printing ink. The loss of markets is not the only reason for the industry's decline. In the past, whale herds have been subjected to uncontrolled slaughter.

Now with helicopters and sounding devices to locate the herds, the whaling fleets come under the commission's regulations governing time of year, number and size of the catch.

Nearly 2 million whales have been slaughtered since 1900. Many species are near extinction. The blue whale, the largest of all creatures, was the worst sufferer. From 1948 to 1965, the catch dropped from 6,908 to a single one. It is doubtful whether more than 1,000 survive.

One problem of the whale population is that the whale fields cover vast stretches of the ocean thus the whales mate only at two or three-year intervals.

Girl At Sea

LONDON (AP) — Britain has sent a girl down to sea. Pat Leary, 23-years-old, is Britain's first female cadet deck officer. Miss Leary, who studied for a degree at Liverpool University, works on an oil tanker.

"Being at sea is the perfect life for me," she said.

But "Joys and Sorrows" is much more than a book about music written by a great cellist. It is above all the enunciation of the principles of a man who has given most of his money and much of his life towards fighting oppression, helping the downtrodden and opposing the horror of war. His account of the events leading up to and during the Spanish Civil War burns with convictions he fought to support.

Indeed, Pablo Casals has led many lives. Born in poverty, he acquired great wealth most of which he has given away. At home in the palaces of Spanish and Belgian royalty, his most passionate admirers and closest friends have been the men associated with him in making music or the poorest peasants of Catalonia and the working men of Barcelona. A fervent patriot with the greatest love for his native Spain, he has been in self-imposed exile from the country since he abandoned his estates there during the Spanish Civil War.

The opening paragraph of "Joys and Sorrows" reveals the essence of this remarkable man. "On my last birthday I was ninety-three years old. That is not young, of course. In fact, it is older than ninety. But age is a relative matter. If you continue to work, and to observe the beauty in the world about you, you find that age does not necessarily mean getting old. At least not in the ordinary sense.

I feel many things more intensely than ever before, and for me life grows more fascinating." Pablo Casals demonstrated this conviction when at eighty-five, stricken with a serious heart attack on the eve of the first Puerto Rico Festival, he fought his way back to a schedule of daily work impossible for many men thirty years his junior in age; and he again demonstrated it when, nearing ninety, he embarked on a personal peace crusade, taking his music to a score of lands.

Superbly illustrated with many photographs, "Joys and Sorrows" is an unself-conscious portrait of a supremely lovable human being.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Twelve-year prison sentences were given Thursday to two members of a Phoenix, Ariz., motorcycle gang who admitted being involved in the $12,000 holdup last December of the Lucas (Ohio) State Bank.

Larry Rolfe, 22, and Armond P. Reno, 27, were sentenced by U. S. District Judge Thomas D. Lambros.

Also appearing before the judge was John A. Loas, 25, of Parma, who admitted seeking $50 bribes from persons hoping to enlist in the Ohio National Guard. Judge Lambros asked for a probation department report on Loas, who is a member of the Guard's 107th Armored Cavalry Regiment.

Earl W. Tite, 70, of South Euclid, was placed on probation for two years after admitting he falsified his income tax returns for 1964 and 1965, involving $64,000 in undeclared income.

Future Of Whaling Industry Dismal, Commission Fears

LONDON (AP) — The future is dismal for the whaling industry, faced with declining sales and shrinking herds.

Fifteen members of the International Whaling Commission met in London this week for its 22nd annual conference to discuss the drastic shrinkage of the markets.

Ronald G. Wall of the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries said that since 1952 the Antarctic quota—the number of whales the commission allows whalers to kill—has dropped from 16,000 to 2,700. The number of Antarctic whaling expeditions shrank from 20 to six.

Norway, once king of the whaling fleets, sent out only one expedition last season and none the year before—the first time in 50 years they did not sail the Antarctic whale seas.

Whale carcasses are towed to a factory ship where they are processed into meat for pet food, oil, bone and meal—the main products.

Whale oil 100 years ago was the main source of light. Now the sources are gas and electricity. The decline of the whalebone corset worn by women early in the century also hit the industry.

Whale oil is still used in margarine, cosmetics, linoleum and printing ink.

The loss of markets is not the only reason for the industry's decline. In the past, whale herds have been subjected to uncontrolled slaughter.

Now with helicopters and sounding devices to locate the herds, the whaling fleets come under the commission's regulations governing time of year, number and size of the catch.

Nearly 2 million whales have been slaughtered since 1900. Many species are near extinction. The blue whale, the largest of all creatures, was the worst sufferer. From 1948 to 1965, the catch dropped from 6,908 to a single one. It is doubtful whether more than 1,000 survive.

One problem of the whale population is that the whale fields cover vast stretches of the ocean thus the whales mate only at two or three-year intervals.

Dr. Colin Holloway, an international conservancy expert, noted that the quota set for last year had not been reached by the whaling fleets.

"If we can keep it that way there are good chances of a recovery," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Happy Days," CBS's summer replacement for Jim Nabors, had its premiere Thursday night and was an unhappy hour. It may make a little television history by infuriating the older members of the audience while boring the younger ones.

The show opened with Louis Nye, in Busby Berkeley white evening clothes, announcing "I am the 1930s—and welcome to those happy days."

This invitation gave a lot of people a chance to recall how happy they were in those depression days. From there the program tried to satirize and romanticize the period at approximately the same time. It kidded and camped old songs, apparently on the theory that the young viewers would be amused while the old folks would be bathed in nostalgic memories upon hearing "Three Little Fishies."

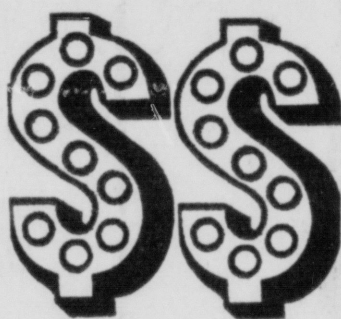

The catch-all devices may have sounded pretty good when devised but they didn't work out.

Teller Is Wounded In Lima Robbery

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A nervous young gunman shot a teller in the elbow as he robbed the Findlay Road branch of the Tower National Bank of $6,200 Thursday.

Miss Joyce Fissell, 21, was wounded only slightly. Bank officials said the robber apparently became nervous and fired, although Miss Fissell made no move inviting such action.

MIAMI (AP) — "I've got a man here who says he just rowed from England," the U.S. immigration officer said into the telephone. "And he doesn't have a visa."

Having received approval from his superior, the officer hung up and issued a 90-day visiting permit to Britisher Sidney Genders.

Genders had just completed a 6,000-mile solo pull across the Atlantic in a rowboat 19 feet, 9 inches long.

His welcoming party was the crew of a police patrol boat. They directed him to U.S. customs and immigration officers.

Genders, 51, said he made the trip to show that a man isn't washed up at 50.

The sturdy-built Britisher finished the voyage from Penzance, England, to Miami in 166 rowing days.

He made stops at Las Palmas in the Canary Islands and Antigua in the British West Indies.

He said he covered an average of 56 miles a day during the final leg of the journey from Antigua to Miami.

"I didn't intend to call at Antigua, but I needed water," Genders said. "I had my water containers under the seat and the constant chafing from the movement wore them through. I lost the last 20 gallons about 400 miles north of Antigua. I made the 12 days into Antigua on rain-water."

The muscular rower, who is 6 feet 1, said he dropped from 200 pounds to 185 during the long pull.

Genders said he closed out a construction business in Birmingham—"I built shops, offices and houses"—to launch his adventure.

He has a son, 28, and a 21-year-old daughter.

Genders said that when he

Perez And Bench Happy With Home Run Records

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez and John Bench, one of the Major League's hottest home run duos since the "M&M Boys," do not waste time chatting about homers. They just keep hitting them.

"We don't talk about homers," said Perez who plays third for the Cincinnati Reds. "The important thing is that we continue to win. We don't care who hits more homers."

Regardless of their thoughts, the two have been dominating the National League home run race. As of today, Perez led with 26 and Bench had 25.

Through 70 games, both Perez and Bench stood just about even to the pace set by the "M&M Boys," for the new York Yankees in 1961. The "M&M Boys" were Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle who hit 61 and 54 homers respectively and Maris, of course, holds the Major League record for home runs in 162 games.

But Bench said, "I don't think we're looking for any records." He jokingly added that "Perez could finish with 62 and I could have 61."

Perez cracked 37 homers last year along with 122 runs batted in and a .294 average. Bench batted .293 with 26 homers and 90 RBIs. Perez has knocked in 76 runs this year and Bench 65.

Despite their improved performances so far this year, the two can not seem to single out any real differences in their batting from last season.

"Maybe I'm just coming around a little bit," said Bench who is only 22 years old and catches most of the time. "Maybe I'm just reaching my strength. I have cut down on my swing somewhat and I'm looking for pitches a little more but I'm just having a good year."

"I just hit the ball," Perez said. "I'm just hitting more home runs. I've been asked why many times but I can't say anything."

Chip Morgan Attends First Christian Athletics Confab

Chip Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Morgan, 407 E. Franklin St., has recently returned from a week at Denison University for the Fellowship of Christian Athletics summer conference.

Over 400 professional, college and high school athletes attended the first conference in Ohio, one of 17 to be held across the country this year.

The purpose of these conferences is to help young athletes grow morally as well as physically.

The conference included talks by prominent athletes and coaches, group discussions and physical activity in the form of the "Dogpatch Olympics."

The boys were grouped into 32 teams of eleven boys on a team, having a coach or prominent athlete as its captain. They participated in various athletic contests to determine the winner of the Olympics. Morgan was on the winning team of the Dogpatch Olympics and received a trophy. The captain of his team was Steve Murphy, quarterback at Purdue.

After the morning competition the teams would "huddle" to discuss religion.

The teaching staff at the conference included Sam Wyche, Cincinnati Bengals quarterback; Bill Glass, ex-Cleveland Browns star; Tom Beutler and Groza of the Browns; Tom Rogers, Dallas Cowboys' rookie; and Pat Williams, general manager of the Chicago Bulls.

Others attending the conference, in addition to F.C.A. staff, include Paul Wiggins of the Cincinnati Bengals, Vince Costello of the San Francisco 49ers, Chuck Walker of the St. Louis football Cardinals, Todd Snyder, the Ohio University receiver and third round draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons, and a number of other college athletes and Ohio coaches.

Denny Williams, coach at Circleville High School, also attended. Efforts are being made to start an F.C.A. chapter in this area.

Orange Bowl Top-Rated For Teams

MIAMI (AP)—Team selectors for the Orange Bowl football classic admit playing an annual numbers game and it's usually the national collegiate poll that decides who'll play New Year's Day.

"When fans began paying so much attention to football polls, we took notice," said Jack Baldwin, chairman of the bowl's selection committee.

"Sure, we think about the guy in Duluth or Seattle who might watch on television. That's why we bear down to get the teams that rate best, no matter what others might think."

Only once in the past seven years has the Orange Bowl booked a team out of the Associated Press' top 10. That was for New Year's Day 1967 when it overlooked Florida's unranked status in favor of having Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier in the event.

The Orange Bowl Committee depends so strongly on AP rankings that it has tabulated the comparison with other New Year's classics, using a point system to decide which game was best at grabbing Top Ten teams.

Guess who won out? That's right, the Orange Bowl.

The point system revealed that the Miami offering did the top job of signing ranked college elevens, the Rose Bowl in Pasadena was second, Dallas' Cotton Bowl third and the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans fourth.

Perez And Bench Happy With Home Run Records

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez and John Bench, one of the Major League's hottest home run duos since the "M&M Boys," do not waste time chatting about homers. They just keep hitting them.

"We don't talk about homers," said Perez who plays third for the Cincinnati Reds. "The important thing is that we continue to win. We don't care who hits more homers."

Regardless of their thoughts, the two have been dominating the National League home run race. As of today, Perez led with 26 and Bench had 25.

Through 70 games, both Perez and Bench stood just about even to the pace set by the "M&M Boys," for the new York Yankees in 1961. The "M&M Boys" were Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle who hit 61 and 54 homers respectively and Maris, of course, holds the Major League record for home runs in 162 games.

But Bench said, "I don't think we're looking for any records." He jokingly added that "Perez could finish with 62 and I could have 61."

Perez cracked 37 homers last year along with 122 runs batted in and a .294 average. Bench batted .293 with 26 homers and 99 RBIs. Perez has knocked in 76 runs this year and Bench 65.

Despite their improved performances so far this year, the two can not seem to single out any real differences in their batting from last season.

"Maybe I'm just coming around a little bit," said Bench who is only 22 years old and catches most of the time. "Maybe I'm just reaching my strength. I have cut down on my swing somewhat and I'm looking for pitches a little more but I'm just having a good year."

"I just hit the ball," Perez said. "I'm just hitting more home runs. I've been asked why many times but I can't say anything."

Bench and Perez have always had an advantage. One has always batted close in the Reds lineup to the other or Lee May who hit 38 home runs last year. May has 19 this season.

"With guys like May and Bench, they can't pitch around us," Perez said.

Bench agreed that having Perez and May in the lineup near him have helped, and added that his 25 home runs this year have cost a couple of players some steak dinners.

"They bet I wouldn't hit over 20 or 25," Bench gloated. "But I've even surprised myself."

Perez and Bench, combined with May and other top hitting Reds such as Pete Rose and Bobby Tolan have kept the Reds perched well on top of the Western Division race in the National League.

"The ball club is really going good," Perez said. "I just hope we can keep it up."

Orange Bowl Top-Rated For Teams

MIAMI (AP)—Team selectors for the Orange Bowl football classic admit playing an annual numbers game and it's usually the national collegiate poll that decides who'll play New Year's Day.

"When fans began paying so much attention to football polls, we took notice," said Jack Baldwin, chairman of the bowl's selection committee.

"Sure, we think about the guy in Duluth or Seattle who might watch on television. That's why we bear down to get the teams that rate best, no matter what others might think."

Only once in the past seven years has the Orange Bowl booked a team out of the Associated Press' top 10. That was for New Year's Day 1967 when it overlooked Florida's unranked status in favor of having Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier in the event.

The Orange Bowl Committee depends so strongly on AP rankings that it has tabulated the comparison with other New Year's classics, using a point system to decide which game was best at grabbing Top Ten teams.

Lockbourne Gunships Fly Night Training Missions

If residents in some areas of central and southeast Ohio should see a bright light on a circling aircraft, they should not be alarmed. The aircraft is an AC-119 gunship from the 4113th Combat Crew Training Squadron at Lockbourne AFB and is on a routine night mission.

One of the characteristics of these night missions is the circling that the gunship does over a particular area. When the aircraft is doing this, it is not in trouble. The gunship is only "orbiting" a simulated target on the ground.

Probably the most prominent feature of the gunship is the bright light or illuminator which Ohio residents have seen in action. A relatively new feature on Air Force aircraft, this device can illuminate an area of the countryside to take the protective cover of the night away from any enemy. Estimated to be brighter than five full moons, an illuminator can brighten a large area of terrain or concentrate its light on a much smaller area.

Before the illuminator became operative the only means of providing light during a night combat mission was flares, and they are only a temporary source of illumination. Experience has proven the value of the illuminator in Southeast Asia.

Campus Probers Told To Keep Cool

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Robert E. Levitt has advised other members of a legislative study committee to "keep your cool" while meeting with hostile college students.

The Canton Republican and Rep. Mark C. Schinnerer, R-49 Lakewood, agreed Thursday that committee members should not lose their tempers during exchanges with students.

Even before an AC-119 takes off from Lockbourne's runways, its route has been carefully selected to avoid, whenever possible, populated areas, schools, and other areas where a noise factor may create a nuisance. The routes are coordinated with both the Federal Aviation Agency and the state flight control officials and are constantly surveyed for their impact on the civilian community.

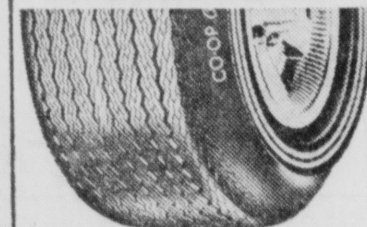

Lockbourne gunships from the 4113th CCTS have been flying over Ohio skies for two years now. Their mission is providing vital training for aircrews enroute to Southeast Asia.

"We attempt to make all flights from this base as problem-free as possible," says Captain William H. Johnson, Base Information Officer. "Our flight planners and operations officers are always reviewing and evaluating flight routes with this goal in mind."

NEED ALUMINUM SIDING FOR YOUR HOME?

Let us show you the biggest difference between Alcan siding and ordinary siding.

It isn't the price.

You're only going to buy siding once. You might as well buy it right.

The right style for your home, for example. Alcan offers the broadest, most exciting range of styles, colors, textures and profiles. We've got them all for you to choose from. And it costs no more to get the siding style that adds most to your home's beauty.

The right quality is something else again. You can't take it for granted. Although some very well known aluminum companies lend their names to siding, that doesn't always mean they make the finished siding. Some do. Others may only supply their metal to a siding manufacturer. On the other hand, Alcan makes siding—all the way from bauxite mines to the completely finished siding. And Alcan's lowest-priced line has Alcan's famous 6-stage finish that will not chip, blister or peel for 30 years or more!

For more differences, give us a call. You won't be obligated in the least.

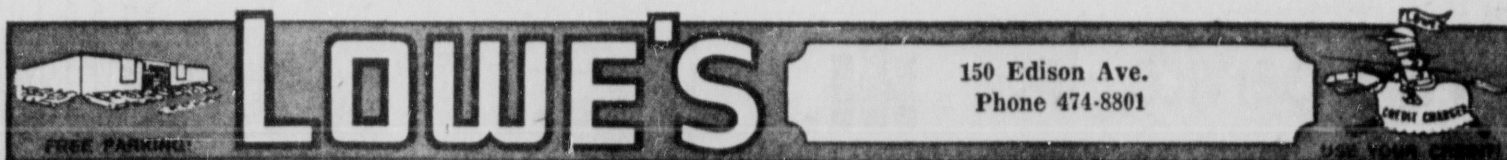

WHY NOT LOWE'S IT, FOLKS?

Low's announces ALCAN aluminum siding installed on your home by people who know their business! Call Lowe's today and a representative will give you a free estimate on your needs, large or small. No obligation. Colors are available.
